Body Exhumed

Workmen at St. Benedict's Cemetery, West Roxbury, early today set about the task of exhuming the body of Mrs. Josephine D. Sessler, 34, first wife of Walter E. Sessler, 36, of Searles rd., West Roxbury, a Boston schoolteacher. The body was exhumed for the purpose of making a complete autopsy after parents of the dead woman asked for a probe.

Kyushu Hit Again, Ships Shell Coast

By Associated Press

Radio Tokyo reported 250 American planes, apparently from Okinawa, attacked Kyushu, southern-most island of Japan today following up raids on the homeland by 1600 aircraft yesterday and last night. American warships bombarded Japan for the seventh time as Allied planes were credited with taking a three-day toll of 267 ships and 430 aircraft.

Kamikaze Hits USS Mississippi

By JOSEPH A. BORS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1 (INS)—The 28-year-old battleship Mississippi—veteran of seven campaigns in World War II—is back in action in the Pacific after being damaged by a Jap suicide plane.

Twenty-two were killed and 18 injured when the kamikaze crashed into the dreadnought's port side in Lingayen gulf in January.

The Mississippi returned to Pearl Harbor for repairs, and while there her anti-aircraft fire power was increased 50 per cent.

The Jap plane came in shortly after noon, grazing the navigation bridge, bounced off a gun mount and went over the side. A 250 pound bomb was disgorged from the enemy plane, hit the bridge and plunged over the side, detonating in the water 15 feet from the hull.

Those who later died of wounds suffered during the Lingayen attack included Joseph Leonard, Stoneham, Mass.

5 Fighting Brothers Home Safe, Sound

By MERCER BAILEY

COLUMBUS, Ga., July 31 (AP)—The Five Carter brothers are back in the states again, battle-weary but happy. Two—Kenneth, 21, and James, 25—have received medical discharges. The others—Dan, 31; Forest, 28, and Clem, 33—are awaiting discharges from Army hospitals.

Today is their father's birthday, and Mrs. George Carter thinks it's the nicest birthday present anyone could have.

Four of the boys, along with six sisters (two of whom have husbands in the Army), lived with their parents before the war in a rambling, 14-room house. Clem, Forest and Dan were married before the war and each had at least one child. James is married now but has no children.

The boys all volunteered. They agreed they would not become commissioned officers.

They won seven presidential citations, a Bronze Star, a Croix de Guerre, ribbons for pre-Pearl Harbor service, ribbons for the European theater, 14 battle stars, two Marine citations, five Good Conduct ribbons and three infantry badges.

The boys all agreed they couldn't find words to express their happiness that all five came through battle with no permanent handicaps.

Their mother said: "God has been good to us. I just can't see how all of them got back home. They've been through so many battles. I believe prayer and faith brought them back. I'm the luckiest mother in the world."

Dan, Forest and Kenneth were in the D-Day invasion. Clem served in Belgium, France and Germany. James spent 22 months in the Pacific.

With the exception of Clem, the brothers all suffered wounds in combat. Clem is being treated for shock.

Special Air Trip For Wounded GI

FRAMINGHAM, July 31 (AP)—An Army private left today on a 30-day furlough to his home in Honolulu and a special high priority will enable him to make the entire trip from Newark by Army plane.

The soldier, PFC Myron B. Thompson, was wounded in France, a German bullet entering his head in front of his left ear and emerging from the right side of his nose, damaging his eyes.

Operations followed at Cushing General Hospital. He wanted to go home but doctors said the trip by ship was out of the question.

Arrangements were made for him to go by plane and the adjutant general's office gave him special permission to leave the country.

Stalin Ill 2 Days, Back at Parley

POTSDAM, July 31 (AP)—Premier Stalin has been slightly indisposed for the past two days, it was disclosed today, but is expected to attend a meeting of the Big Three this afternoon.

The disclosure apparently explained a two-day lapse in his talks with President Truman and Prime Minister Attlee.

Stalin's indisposition was believed nothing more than a slight cold, but the 66-year-old premier's physician took every precaution to safeguard his health and ordered him not to leave the house.

Attlee Leaves Potsdam For Commons' Opening

LONDON, July 31 (AP)—Prime Minister Attlee is expected to return from Potsdam late today for the organizational meeting of the new House of Commons tomorrow with a powerful Labor majority which apparently was prepared to push its nationalization program immediately.

GEN. MAXIME WEYGAND
Aids Pétain Defense

Weygand Clears Pétain In Surrender

By LOUIS NEVIN

PARIS, July 31 (AP)—Gen. Maxime Weygand, commander of French armies when the Germans broke through to Paris, assumed full responsibility today for the French armistice.

He was first defense witness at the trial of Marshal Pétain, accused of intelligence with the enemy and plotting against the security of France. He limped into court and bowed low to Pétain.

"Co-ordinated resistance no longer was possible," the multi-clad general said.

"I considered it my duty as commander in chief to ask for an armistice. I took the decision myself and on purely military grounds. There was no question of collusion with Marshal Pétain."

He said the first suggestion for an armistice came from President Albert Lebrun, one of the first witnesses against the old soldier. This was made at a war committee meeting on May 25, 1940, when Weygand said Lebrun asked if it would not be better to obtain conditions of peace before the armies were destroyed.

Weygand was preceded by Marcel Paul, a court witness and a member of the Consultative Assembly, who charged the Vichy police with tortures and cruelty and blamed Pétain for their actions.

Another member of the assembly, Paul Arrighi, testified briefly that the "ordinary Frenchman" was stupefied when the French army stopped fighting.

Burglars Steal Scotch From Sec. Patterson

Pierre Laval Surrenders To Yanks

IN GERMANY, July 31 (AP)—Pierre Laval has surrendered to American forces in the American occupation zone in Germany, it was disclosed authoritatively today.

MADRID, July 31 (AP)—The Spanish government announced today Pierre Laval was flying from Spain "in the direction of the point of origin" aboard the same plane he used three months ago to escape from Germany by way of Bolzano, Italy.

(Semi-official reports in Paris said Laval was headed for Bavaria to surrender to American occupation forces.)

The former Vichy chief of government, sought by France on a charge of collaboration with the Germans, was ordered by Spain to leave the country.

In his flight today, Laval was accompanied by his wife and two German air force officers in full Luftwaffe uniform.

Nazi Terror-Weapon Experts Still at Large

PARIS, July 31 (AP)—Stars and Stripes said today that research and laboratory experts who invented and perfected Germany's terror weapons are still at large because no specific directive to cover their arrest and prosecution has been issued.

"We have their administrative big shots," the paper said, quoting an Allied officer, "but not their research men."

Reds Rule Youth Groups in Reich

BERLIN, July 31 (AP)—Marshal Georgi Zhukov, supreme chief of the Soviet Military Administration of Germany, ordered creation of "anti-fascist youth committees" today in Russian Zone cities.

All other youth organizations, trade and sports unions, social and kindred organizations were forbidden.

Zhukov's order followed strong Soviet encouragement of the formation of a united front of Communist, Socialist, Democratic and Christian Democratic parties in eastern Germany.

High School Started For Young Okinawans

OKINAWA, July 31 (AP)—High School came to Okinawa for the first time today and 400 barefoot youngsters showed up. The Japanese had discouraged anything higher than elementary education.

The new high school classes are under jurisdiction of the military government, but with native teachers. Subjects include Japanese and English history, geography, arithmetic and exercise.

Mrs. Sessler's Body Exhumed

The body of Mrs. Josephine Davenport Sessler, 34, of West Roxbury, exhumed today by Mt. Benedict Cemetery workmen, was removed to the Southern Mortuary where an autopsy will be performed by Dr. Timothy J. O'Leary, Suffolk County medical examiner.

The exhumation was the first step in the investigation into the death of the woman who died in Boston City Hospital May 29 which has been demanded by members of her family.

The investigation was authorized by Dist. Atty. William J. Foley after a demand for a probe was made by the dead woman's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Davenport, of Rosclair st., Dorchester, and her sister, Mrs. Ruth Davenport Gregory, 20, of Massachusetts ave., Arlington, wife of a naval officer.

Mrs. Sessler, mother of two children, was the first wife of Walter E. Sessler, 36, of Searle rd., West Roxbury, a manual training teacher at the Abraham Lincoln School. Records at the Boston City Hall marriage bureau show that on June 4, two days after his wife's funeral, Sessler filed intentions to wed Miss Gloria Jean Hartford, 23, an Emmanuel College graduate.

They were married on June 9 in Lindsey Memorial Chapel by the Rev. Arthur S. Payzant. The second Mrs. Sessler was formerly a teacher at the Abraham Lincoln School, but was recently transferred to the Robert G. Gregory School in West Roxbury.

Dr. Patrick J. Foley, school committee chairman, announced today that the committee's scheduled investigation of the Sessler case had been postponed until tomorrow.

City Hospital records show that the first Mrs. Sessler died there from lobar pneumonia and polyneuritis, after she had been a patient for eight days.

An autopsy was performed at that time and Frank Stratton, Boston police chemist, made a chemical examination of some of the body tissues, Dr. Leary said. The medical examiner announced that the reports disclosed nothing which couldn't be found in a normally dead body. He added, however, that he had decided on a re-examination to satisfy myself that something was or wasn't there.

The investigation into Mrs. Sessler's death, climaxed by today's exhumation, was preceded by a municipal court case in which Mrs. Gregory, sister of the dead woman, was charged with pelting the second Mrs. Sessler with eggs and tomatoes.

After a hearing, Judge Elijah Adlow dismissed a charge of assault without a finding.

Jet Airplane Over Boston Tomorrow

Watch the skies tomorrow—the jet propelled plane is coming to Boston! It will be Greater Boston's first look at the latest and speediest plane in service—a plane whose rapidity never has been revealed by the War Department beyond the comment it can do more than 400 miles an hour.

The plane, an Airacomet P-59, equipped with two jet engines manufactured at the General Electric Co.'s River Works plant in Lynn, will be flown here by Capt. John Brown, of the Army Air Force, from the Bell Aircraft Corp.'s airport at Niagara Falls, N. Y., for a spectacular air demonstration and later public exhibition at Logan Airport, East Boston.

Hundreds climbing to Boston rooftops or gathering on the Common and Esplanade will get their first glimpse of a jet propelled plane when it drops in from an altitude of 30,000 feet to assist Boston's celebration of Army Air Force Day.

The progress of the plane during its exhibition flight over the Greater Boston area will be broadcast over the city's public address system after a short address by Mayor Kerrigan on the significance of Army Air Force Day.

First indication of the approach of the P-59 will be a rumbling roar, similar to that of a freight train rolling through the countryside.

Capt. Brown is expected to land at Logan airport shortly after 11 a. m., refuel and take off at 11:50 a. m. for an exhibition flight over Boston and Lynn, which probably will cover some 200 miles before he lands again at the airport at 12:15 p. m.

While hundreds of thousands in Boston will see the flight, the serial exhibition by the P-59 was designed originally for the benefit of the G-E workers who aided in manufacturing its jet propulsion engines, giving them their first sight of the results of their handiwork.

Following the flight a reception and buffet lunch will be held

Where to See It

Vantage points for the jet-plane exhibition tomorrow will be Boston Common, the Public Garden, Charles River Esplanade and the roof tops of downtown buildings.

Watch for the pilot to perform the ship's famed "sky-rocket" maneuver.

In this spectacular stunt the plane, flying along horizontally, suddenly zooms upward in a straight perpendicular climb until it disappears from sight.

at the airport for Capt. Brown. Army and Navy officials and Mayor Kerrigan will attend.

The jet-propelled plane will be on public exhibitions at the airport at 2 p. m. until 4:30 p. m., when it will take off for the Bedford airport to participate in the big Army Air Force Day celebration there. All types of Army planes will be demonstrated at Bedford.

The P-59 will land for 10 minutes and then return to Boston, where it will go on public exhibition again from 5 p. m. to 8 p. m. After remaining in Boston overnight, Capt. Brown expects to take off early Thursday for Buffalo and probably will stop at the General Electric plant at Schenectady while en route.

Simplicity of construction, high speed, and economy in operation are the salient features of the jet-propelled plane.

At the front of the engine are two openings for air intakes. Rotary compressors, in reality high-speed fans, draw in the air and force huge quantities under pressure into combustion chambers where it mixes with kerosene.

Listen for Roar

If you want to see the first jet propelled plane to fly over Greater Boston tomorrow, listen between 11 a. m. and 12:15 p. m. for a rumbling roar similar to that of a freight train rolling through the countryside.

That's the typical noise which a jet propelled motor makes, compared to the droning hum of the ordinary gasoline engine plane.

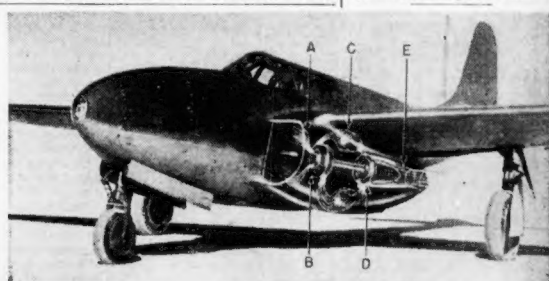

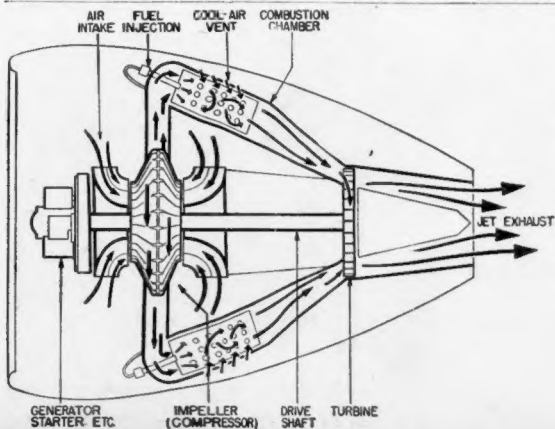

When you hear the rumbling roar, look up quickly because the jet propelled plane really travels.

gases at high pressure through turbines in the rear of the motor with the engine narrowing down to a tail pipe, through which the gases are ejected at high velocity to give the plane its thrust.

The thrust is the whole principle of jet propulsion.

It is similar to the operation of a lawn sprinkler, which is rotated by incoming water. Or the DRIVING ON AIR—Powered by turbo-jet engines the P-59A uses recoil from air expelled in a high pressure jet to drive it swiftly through the sky. In operation, air flows into the intake (A) at the nose of the engine. It is compressed (B) and goes on to the blast chamber (C) where fuel is ignited and the temperature of the air raised. The heated air then sweeps through the turbine (D) which furnishes power for the compression process. Then the airband gases sweep out the jet exhaust (E), causing a reactive force which drives the plane forward.

1946 Meat Outlook Bad, Senator Finds

WASHINGTON, July 31 (AP)—Sen. Wherry (R.) of Nebraska predicted today that there will be less meat at this season next year than there is now. "It doesn't look good to me," he told reporters. "We've got a short corn crop and feed will be scarce."

The Nebraskan said OPA was able to reduce points on some meats, effective this week, because the Army had cut down on the amount of meat it has set aside for it.

"But," Wherry added, "the Army may come back any time and say, 'Here, we have got to have more meat.' " "We have got the biggest Army now we have ever had and there is no reason to think it will not need as much meat."

Wherry expressed doubt there will be as much pen-feeding in the coming fall and winter as there was last season, particularly with a short corn crop.

"That is, unless there is more incentive offered," he added. "The subsidy is not enough. It only comes to $5 on a 1000-pound steer, and if things don't go right a feeder can easily lose $35 to $40 a head."

Feeding of Moving Troops OPA Problem

WASHINGTON, July 31 (AP)—Senators turned today to an inquiry into how soldiers and sailors are going to be fed as thousands move from Atlantic ports across the continent and into the Pacific. The question already had come up at hearings by the group on complaints from some restaurants that they do not get enough red points. Leon Bosch, associate director of OPA's food rationing division, said one problem OPA had in mind is the ration matter that would arise if a troop train stopped in a small community for an hour and a half or so and the troops ate virtually everything the local restaurants had.

That would necessitate allocation of extra ration points if the restaurants were to feed their regular customers, he said. McCullough said even with the cut most restaurants could buy 25 per cent more meats and fats for each customer than the housewife can buy for each member of her family.

13-Year-Old Boy Amnesia Victim

Found wandering aimlessly in the North Station waiting room during the early morning hours, a 13-year-old boy, who said he "couldn't remember a thing," was taken to City Hospital today for treatment of amnesia. Hospital attaches said the boy had a severe bump on his head which may have caused loss of memory.

The boy told police he "thought" he had been to a moving picture theater. He was unable to remember his name or where he lived.

He was described as five feet, five inches tall and weighing about 115 pounds, with medium complexion. He was wearing blue dungarees, a yellow sport shirt and grey slip-on sweater.

WAC Seeks Annulment From Married Captain

BERLIN, July 31 (INS)—WAC Sgt. Kay Koulouvaris of Brooklyn took the first step today to snap the marital strings of the "Berlin romance that made her the second—and bigamous—bride of Army Capt. Carl Schultz of Chicago."

Sgt. Koulouvaris began annulment proceedings in the same municipal office in Zehlendorf where one wee kago yesterday she was married to Capt. Schultz.

The circumstances were quite different from the previous trip. Today she was accompanied by a military policeman and her visit was to discover how she could sever the legal ties made binding by the same officials.

After the conference, she declined to comment.

Capt. Schultz continued to "sweat it out" in his quarters, but there were indications things might be shaping up a little better for him.

It was understood that, if it can be established that Schultz cancelled his allotment to his first wife after purportedly receiving word of her death, this will be in his favor.

Schultz told authorities he was advised by two persons that his wife in Chicago had died.

Authorities indicated Army circles could ask for annulment of the marriage on the ground that Sgt. Koulouvaris did not know Schultz had a wife, and would not have gone through with the ceremony if she had known of it.

A decision by the German civil authorities on the marriage that caused repercussion across the Atlantic is expected soon.

Meantime, Mrs. Schultz declared emphatically in Chicago that she did not intend to "give up my husband."

Sgt. Koulouvaris was cheered today by a cablegram from her mother, Mrs. Julia Koulouvaris in Brooklyn urging her not to worry.

"We're still all heart and soul with you," the mother's message to Sgt. Kanella Koulouvaris read. "You've done nothing wrong and nothing dishonorable."

Meanwhile, Capt. Schultz announced he hoped to "clear her name of any besmirching," as a result of a Chicago woman's disclosure that the captain already was married to her.

Bandits Tie, Gag 2 Watchmen in Oil Office Holdup

Cambridge police were searching today for the three armed and masked bandits who shortly before midnight invaded the offices of the American Oil Co. in Rindge ave., North Cambridge, bound and gagged two watchmen and left after ransacking the premises.

The two watchmen were Paul Turco, 53, of Spencer ave., Chelsea, and David Gallant, 60, also of Spencer ave. They were released when the bandits, on leaving, telephoned the police of their plight. Turco told police he was sitting alone in the office in front of an open-screened window. Suddenly the screen was ripped off and he turned to find himself staring into the muzzles of three pistols.

After ransacking desks and any place where money might be hidden, they announced they were leaving.

"We'll let the police know you're tied up, so they can come and release you," one of the trio said.

City dwellers had a lot of good weather to be thankful for during July, according to the weather man, but vacationists were not so lucky. Despite daytime fog and cloudiness, city residents had plenty of cool nights for sleep.

The warmest day was the first of the month with the temperature climbing to 93. The coolest was 55 on the 12th.

Nevertheless, the average temperature was about 73, a fraction above the normal 71.7.

Rainfall was 2.12 inches, unless an unexpected shower tonight upsets today's calculations. The normal for July is 3.49.

Families were warned today their only protection against possibilities of an unbalanced diet next year, due to the threatened 25 per cent reduction in the 1945 commercial pack of fruit and vegetables, is to learn home canning.

The warning came from Mrs. Ruth Gould Shufelt, home demonstration agent of the Norfolk County Agricultural School, who will give a canning demonstration tomorrow at 2 p. m. and 7 p. m. at the Record-American-Sunday Advertiser garden on the Common. She will repeat the demonstration at the same hours on Aug. 15.

Canned tomatoes will be particularly scarce next year, with only about half the 1945 output, she said. She reminded householders an extra five pounds of sugar per person is available now for use in canning fruits.

In tomorrow's demonstration, Mrs. Shufelt will use vegetables grown in the Record-American-Sunday Advertiser garden on Boston Common under the supervision of Foster H. Weiss, head of the vegetable gardening department of the Norfolk County Agricultural School.

Pointing out that home canning can be done with ordinary kitchen utensils and needs no exceptional skill, she declared that pressure cooker gauges were a considerable advance on more primitive methods of canning and that those caring to bring them to the demonstration could have them tested.

Mrs. Shufelt, a graduate of the Framingham Teachers' College and the mother of two sons in the service, two years ago was the first woman ever to give a canning demonstration on the Common.

Legion Holds Fast To Vets Job Rights

Boston Evening American Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON, July 31 — Veterans reemployment rights are part of a contract between our nation and members of the Armed Forces.

This nation must not renege or waver on its contract.

So declares the National Employment Committee of the American Legion in a special report made public today, which has been accepted by the Legion's National Executive Committee.

The committee statement served notice on Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines' reemployment advisory group that the Legion will not yield in its insistence that job guarantees to veterans be rigidly enforced.

Gen. Hines' advisors are scheduled to meet today and tomorrow in final efforts to reach a compromise on the veterans' job issue.

The group comprises representatives of labor, industry and veterans' organizations and for nearly six months has debated, without results, the question of how veterans reemployment guarantees under the Selective Service Act should be interpreted.

Labor organizations have sought to subject veterans' job restoration to union seniority rules and practices while the Selective Service System, charged by Congress with administration of the Act, contends that the law protects veterans' rights regardless of artificial union restrictions.

The Legion has consistently upheld the Selective Service System, and in the special report of its National Employment Committee, the Legion's position is emphasized and strengthened.

Regardless of what other representatives of Gen. Hines' Advisory Group may do today or tomorrow the Legion will not compromise, officials of the organization reiterated today.

U. S. Warned Not To Be Tyrannical

NEW LONDON, July 31 (AP) — V. Adm. Wilson Brown, USN (Ret.) of Waterford, naval aide to President Roosevelt from February, 1943, until his death, said here today that one probable result of the war was that the United States had made more enemies than friends.

In a brief address prepared for delivery at graduation exercises of the 58th class of officer candidates at the U. S. Maritime Service Officers School here, Adm. Brown asserted.

"We will be bitterly hated by our present recognized enemies. We will be envied and reviled by many we thought to help. It behooves us to be strong in our own defense and to be fair and decent in the treatment of our less powerful neighbors lest, in our might, we find ourselves in the unenviable role of bully and tyrant."

33 Polish Seamen Marooned in N. Y.

Special to the Boston Evening American
NEW YORK, July 31—Because they refuse to submit to the new Communist-controlled Warsaw government, 33 Polish seamen were marooned here today, virtually men without a country.

Jet Plane

moving of a toy balloon through the air when the air filling it is released through the tiny nozzle.

In the jet propelled plane, the velocity of the combustion gases swirling out of the nozzle in the rear of the engine, gives the plane its thrust forward through the air.

The gases pass out of the jet in a steady stream and the thrust power is regulated by the fuel throttle. When properly regulated no flame, glow or stream of smoke emerges from the nozzle.

The General Electric jet is started by electricity from batteries in the plane or an outside source operating a small motor which spins the compressor and forces air into the combustion chamber.

Thirty seconds after starting, the jet motor, will generate enough power for a takeoff.

Jet propulsion produces negligible vibration in a plane, eliminating one cause of pilot fatigue. It also functions smoothly and powerfully at extremely high altitudes. Because it is propellerless, it has greater speed possibilities and its engine is lighter than plane gas engines.

Its simplicity makes maintenance easier, requiring less personnel, and it will work with almost any kind of liquid fuel that burns.

Caught in a weird and tragic maelstrom of international politics, three veteran sailors, who since 1939 have faced Nazi subs to bring Allied war cargoes to port, face possible deportation to a Poland whose government may imprison them or send them to Russian labor camps.

This was learned by the N. Y. Journal-American today in talks with officers and crew members of a Liberty ship supplied by the U. S. Lend-Lease program under War Shipping Administration supervision to the Polish government.

When the seamen sailed from England a few weeks ago to man the ship, their papers were cleared by the London Polish Government in exile. A few days after they arrived in America, both this country and England recognized the so-called Polish Committee of Liberation, a group under Moscow domination.

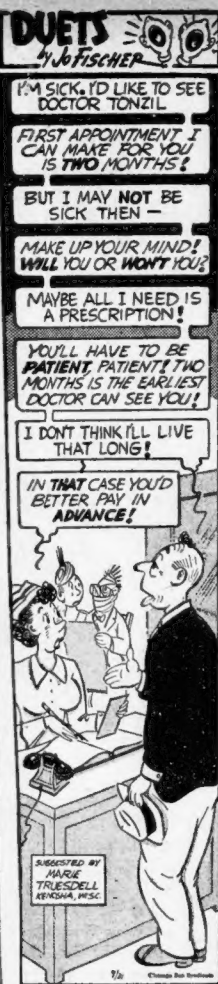

Now that their ship has been transferred to a government which they do not recognize as their own, the Polish seamen have attempted to obtain work from the War Shipping Administration on American vessels where their long experience would be invaluable during the current shortage of maritime manpower.

"We've been turned down on all sides," a spokesman for the group declared. "Although the seafarers' AFL union said they have room for all of us, the WSA declared we could not ship under an American flag because the State Dept. had forbidden it."

Bandit Chase Ends In Crash, 5 Injured

A Boston man was in police custody today after a 70-mile-an-hour chase, which ended when the car in which he was riding crashed into another machine on Revere Beach pkwy. Injuring five persons.

His two companions escaped when one of them warned off pursuing civilians by waving a revolver.

The suspect will face a police headquarters lineup today on suspicion of larceny.

Cellus Stokes, 51, of Holyoke st., So. End, was robbed of $300 while standing in Columbus sq., South End, earlier by three men who escaped in a green sedan. The car, the registration number of which was furnished by Stokes, was recognized later on Addison st., East Boston, by motorcycle officer Henry Martus, who gave chase.

The chase roared through East Boston into Revere and at the intersection of Revere Beach pkwy. and McLellan hwy., the bandit car collided with an approaching car. The suspects jumped from the car and fled on foot, one warning off pursuing civilians by waving a revolver. The other was captured by three civilians who turned him over to Metropolitan District Police. They in turn returned him to the custody of Warren ave. police in Roxbury. He is being held for suspicion of larceny.

Five persons in the car struck by the fleeing suspects were injured. They are: Andrew and Emilia Liccardi, of Evergreen ave., Somerville, and their son Michael, 20, the driver; Olga Morazzi, 18, of Griswold st., Cambridge; Mrs. Nancy Durazzani, of New Hampshire ave., Somerville.

Prison Warden, 6 Aides Fired

LANSING, Mich., July 31 (AP)—Warden Harry H. Jackson and six other top officials of the State prison of Southern Michigan were ordered removed from office today on charges of maladministration and moral laxity.

Warden Jackson and his assistants had been under suspension since last week, when Atty-Gen. John R. Dethmers' voluminous and sensational reports climaxed a four-month investigation of prison affairs.

The reports said "big shot" convicts had things their own way at the penitentiary near Jackson, were permitted to gamble within the walls, bring in liquor and women visitors and to visit nearby houses of prostitution.

Asks Own Home

DEAR Miss Fairfax:
The young man I've been going with for over a year is now going into the service and we've become formally engaged. He is 21 and was deferred for three years on account of the job he has, but he asked to be released so he can fight.

His parents bought a new home recently which he's going to help them pay for when he comes back, and his mother has asked that we come and live with them when we marry. I think a lot of his family, but when I marry I want my own home, even if it's only two rooms. I think young married people should be alone.

I've already paid for a bedroom suite, and have saved enough money to start house-keeping, as I've worked part time since I was 17 and full time for the last year. I'm 19 years of age and a high school graduate. He has his heart set to this house and they said they would fix it up so we could live in it too. I'm so afraid I'll lose him if I tell him I prefer we live alone. What shall I do?

WONDERING

There are as many different kinds of in-laws as there are trees in the forest. They vary from ministering angels to fiends incarnate. Many hundreds of young people have written me that they've lived happily with in-laws, and an equal number have told me their marriages have gone on the rocks on account of in-law trouble.

Don't you think it might be worth while to give it a trial? Why not suggest to them that you have your own kitchenette, bath and bedroom? This would eliminate that fruitless cause of domestic warfare—two women fussing over one cook-stove.

Specialized Wash for Oily Skin

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE, Beauty and Fashion Editor

THE POOR GAL whose skin gushes oil throughout the sweltering temperatures... and who seeks constant recourse to the powder puff in a futile effort to sop up some of the surface grease... will give three lusty cheers for a clever combination of tiny granules of soap in cream form.

Beauty

HEAD-TO-TOE loveliness is essential when you show off that divine silhouette in a brief-as-possible midriff swim suit... but let a smooth, radiantly clean complexion take as nice a bow as your fashion fastidiousness. Don't be a gal who elicits pity because your oily skin looks oilier when King Sol beams his hottest. Let a grainy special skin wash take care of that situation... and be your summertime answer, a clean, lovely skin. ORCHIDACEOUS Dusty Anderson, a Columbia star, doesn't look a bit troubled... and should she?

pens for 1945-46 season now valid.

GASOLINE

16A coupons good for six gallons each valid through Sept. 21; B7, B8, C7 and C8 coupons good for five gallons each.

SHOES

Airplane stamps Nos. 1, 2 and 3 good indefinitely. OPA says no plans to cancel any. New stamps valid tomorrow.

Because the heat seems to have the effect of making an oily skin oilier... and a dry skin drier and tougher... specialized skin washing is the answer to summer beauty care... especially in August when dog days are droopy-dingers.

SPECIALIZED TREATMENT

A beauty house whose years of progressive cosmetic chemistry adds up to 90... has compounded this specialized treatment for oily skin... summer's stepchild... inclined thereby to blackheads, coarseness and externally caused blemishes. The grainy substances of this special oily skin wash formula dissolve dirt and pore-clogging impurities... while the cream does its work of softening and smoothing the skin... truly a remarkable combination for the purpose intended.

Just a thimbleful smoothed between the palms of the hands with water... and then massaged into the skin... with definite concentration on the oily areas around the nose, chin and forehead... will give you that cleaner than clean feeling you've always wanted but never could achieve when the mercury was soaring. After it is washed off... exactly as you wash off a soap lather from your face... your complexion emerges healthfully aglow and bright and you are at peace with the world... even in the 90's.

HEAD-TO-TOE LOVELY

You won't want to run and hide because you weren't blessed with a peaches-and-cream complexion... you won't want to duck dates because of a troubled skin... you'll find that daily use of this grainy special skin wash will take care of what ails your complexion... and in due course of time you, too, can lift your face to a scrutinizing world.

If you are a beach beauty because you have a lovely figure... but a Black-eyed Susan facially... give your face special attention with this special summer time cream wash... and make yourself a head-to-toe lovely.

For the name of this specialized skin wash, phone the Beauty Dept., LIBERTY 4000, or write me, care of the Boston Evening American, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Hot-Day Drinks

By MARTHA LEE

SUMMERTIME and it's hot! Oh for something icy cold to drink—tart, tinkling, cool and refreshing—to cool off temperatures and dispositions, too. The tart snappy citrus flavors of lemon, orange, and grapefruit can be combined and sweetened in a variety of ways. The following recipes were devised with the precious contents of the sugar-can well in mind:

MOCHA FROST

$\frac{1}{2}$ cup water $\frac{1}{2}$ cups milk
 $\frac{1}{4}$ cup molasses $\frac{1}{4}$ cup sugar
 $\frac{1}{2}$ cup cocoa
1 cup cold strong coffee
Combine cocoa and sugar; then stir in molasses and water. Bring to a boil while stirring. Add milk and heat. Then add coffee. Chill. Pour over ice cubes when serving. Makes 6 cups.

ORANGE FRIZZ

12 whole cloves
Squeezed rind of 2 lemons
Squeezed rind of 2 oranges
4 cups water $\frac{1}{4}$ cup sugar
 $\frac{1}{2}$ cup lemon juice
1 cup orange juice
 $\frac{1}{4}$ cup molasses
Simmer cloves, lemon and orange rind with 2 cups of water, covered, for 5 minutes. Let cool. Then drain and combine liquid with lemon and orange juice, molasses, sugar and remaining 2 cups of water. Makes 5 cups without ice.

PARTY DRINK

1 qt. currants 5 oranges
1 pint water 3 lemons
1 cup honey Water
1 small stick cinnamon
Wash currants, place in a kettle and cover with water. Reserve $\frac{1}{4}$ cup currants for garnishing. Simmer gently for 10 minutes. Strain. If a clear juice is desired, do not press the pulp. Combine the pint of water, honey and cinnamon and boil for 5 minutes. Remove the spice stick. Combine the juice of the oranges, lemons and currant-juice with the spiced syrup, diluted to taste. Chill. Fresh pineapple or cranberry juice may be used instead of orange and lemon juice.

FRUIT PUNCH

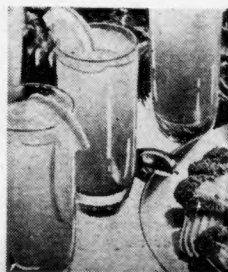

1 cup orange juice
 $\frac{1}{2}$ cup lemon juice
1 cup crushed fruit
1 cup honey $\frac{1}{2}$ tsp. salt
1 pint gingerale
 $\frac{1}{2}$ cups freshly-made strong tea

Mix all the ingredients except the ginger ale. Just before serving, add chopped ice and the ginger ale. If the punch is too strong, add ice water in small quantities until the punch is the flavor desired.

Wine blends happily with fruit juices and bottles of wine give host and hostess many opportunities for refreshing and altogether delightful talk drinks and party punch bowls.

ORANGE COOLER

$\frac{1}{4}$ cup lemon juice Ice cubes
2 cups strained orange juice
2 cups white port wine
Orange slices for garnish
Add lemon juice to orange juice. Then add the wine and shake with ice cubes. Pour wine over ice cubes in tall glasses. Garnish with half slice of orange. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Slanting Brim Featured

By BETTINA BEDWELL

THE shape of a hat is what decides its style importance. Milliners call it "contours," and there is a tendency to admire the contour that which slants to one side of the head, highlighting a profile view of a face under it. I have seen such shapes in leading Fall collections, and they are also important this summer. A hat with a brim that rides high on one side and very low on the other is a contour hat that is very chic.

Miss Dulin has sketched one of these from Tatiana du Plessis, a millinery designer who invented the profile contour straw. This model is made of warm terra cotta straw, and it is trimmed with sultry black velvet, which makes the band and bow that drags off the right side of the brim. A black veil with big chenille dots adds to the dramatic color contrast.

Shangri-La Diary

By CPL. MARGARET HASTINGS, WAC

Written Exclusively for International News Special Service (World Copyright and All Rights Reserved)

OWEGO, N. Y., July 31 (INS) —The mirror in my cheap, red enamel compact fascinated the New Guinea natives. The jackknife fascinated them. And last, but not least, we fascinated them.

They had never seen white people before. With the exception of Trouble Maker, they all watched us with the eager, friendly, fascinated gaze of children at a zoo.

By this time, I was so tired my throbbing legs would no longer hold me up. This Wednesday following the crash on Sunday had been an exhausting day, physically and emotionally.

We had finally worked our way down the mountain side, an Army plane had spotted us and now our first encounter with the dread natives was proving a howling success.

The last reserve of strength flowed out of me, and I sat down suddenly. The natives gathered round me. They sat on their haunches and stared. And no wonder. I was a sight to behold.

They had never seen a white person before, and certainly I was the first black and white person they had ever seen.

If an artist had taken a pencil and drawn a line from forehead to chin, my face couldn't have been more neatly divided into black and white halves.

The left side of my face was absolutely black from the burns I had suffered in the plane crash.

My eyebrows and eyelashes were gone and my nose had begun to swell. My hair stood up in short tufts all over my head. I was a sight, all right, guaranteed to fascinate only savages or internees.

At the moment I could not have loved Pete, our nickname for the chief, and his followers more dearly if they had been blood brothers. They had turned out to be a race of Caspar Milquetoasts in black-face instead of head hunters or cannibals. I was grateful.

But goodness! Pete and his boys certainly needed baths and a lot of rose water.

The breeze was coming from the wrong direction and I prayed they would get tired of staring soon and go home.

They had brought with them every fly in the jungle. Wherever there was a scratch or sore on those black bodies, the flies were caked. It made me ill.

McCollom showed Pete the injuries Decker and I had received in the crash. Pete, who was an oldish man, shook his head solemnly and sympathetically.

He looked again and muttered "uhn, uhn, uhn" over and over again. We knew he was trying to tell us he was WAC Cpl. Margaret Hastings and her two soldier companions had already survived incredible ordeals when they were confronted by a strange tribe of naked blacks in the valley of Shangri-La, New Guinea. Their only defense against the overwhelming numbers was a broad smile, and after anxious moments the leader grinned back. The rest of the tribe, with one exception, parroted his sign of friendship.

Sorry and wanted to help. The only native word we ever picked up was "uhn, uhn, uhn," repeated over and over. Subsequently, the natives came back to visit us day after day. They would chatter like magpies to us. We would always listen carefully, from time to time muttering "uhn, uhn, uhn."

They would be delighted, like the bore to whom you keep saying "yes, yes, yes" during a long-winded conversation.

"Uhn, uhn, uhn" we would say as the natives chattered. They would beam at us, and then talk twice as fast. But on this first day, Pete looked at the gash on Decker's head and did something about it. He stepped forward and blew his breath into the cut.

For the first and only time, I thought Decker was going to faint. Old Pete then came over to me and blew on my legs and hand. And I thought I would faint. Pete undoubtedly had the world's worst case of halitosis.

Decker and McCollom and I came to the conclusion that the blowing of the chieftain's breath on a wound was probably some native cure-all custom, like laying on of hands in other parts of the world. But Decker and I didn't appreciate the honor.

We were all three trembling with exhaustion by midafternoon. But Pete and his pals showed no signs of going home.

took a good look at Pete and said:

"Holy smoke! We've got a guardian."

Whenever any of us woke up during the night, Pete was always there, like Old Faithful.

We were up at dawn on Thursday, waiting for the planes we knew would come back and parachute supplies in to us. We ate a few hard candies and talked about our rescue. McCollom thought the Army could use a helicopter. There wasn't space for anything larger.

"We can clear enough space for it to land," he said confidently.

The first Army plane came over at 9 o'clock that morning, and started dropping cargo chutes. It was a lovely sight, to see that first big red chute belly into the air.

It meant help and we were in desperate need of it.

The first chute landed about 100 yards away in the jungle. McCollom and Decker, drawing on what reserves of strength I do not know, went after it. I sat on the knoll, trying to keep track of succeeding chutes and where they landed.

It took the men a long time to get the first cargo chute out of the jungle. But its contents were priceless. It was an F-M radio, operated somewhat like a walkie-talkie.

McCollom swiftly set it up. The plane was still circling overhead and Decker and I were in a true fever as we watched it and then McCollom.

"This is Lt. McCollom," he said into the mouthpiece. "This is Lt. McCollom. Give me a call. Give me a call. Do you read me? Over."

Instantly and clearly, the reply came:

"This is 311 (number of circling plane) calling 925 (number of plane that crashed). 311 calling 925. I read you 5x5."

That meant the plane could hear us perfectly.

I looked at McCollom and Decker. They were crying, just as I was.

McCollom reported the details of the crash and told the names of the survivors. An Army doctor in the plane overhead asked how we were. McCollom looked at Decker and me.

"Tell 'em we're fine!" I said. "Yes," Decker ordered. "Tell 'em we're in good shape. There's nothing they can do, anyway."

So McCollom told them we were fine, even as Decker and I were so gangrenous we were almost too weak to move. But the Army said it would parachute medical men in to us, anyway. We both felt better for the mere promise of aid.

"We're dropping plenty of food," the plane said. "Everything from shrimp cocktails to nuts." We looked for weeks, but we never did locate the shrimp cocktails.

When the plane flew off, we looked up from the radio. And there, on the knoll across from us were Pete and his chums. They were squatted on their haunches, grinning and watching us like an audience at a Broadway play.

They had built a little fire and were contentedly puffing their home-made cigars. McCollom, Decker and I were dying for a cigaret. We had plenty of them, but not a light among us.

"I think I'm going over and borrow a cup of sugar from the neighbors," said McCollom.

So he went over and borrowed a light, and we all had cigarets. The natives smoked on their knoll and we smoked on ours. No peace pipe ever lasted better.

Elliott's Loans Belong In New Deal History

BY THIS TIME most Americans have made up their minds one way or another about the significance of the revelations published by Westbrook Pegler concerning a loan of $200,000 made in 1939 by John Hartford, a chain-store "economic royalist," to Elliott Roosevelt and liquidated in 1942 by "the Roosevelt family" at two cents on the dollar.

According to Mr. Pegler, Elliott Roosevelt put the bite on Mr. Hartford and, to clinch the matter, called the late President at Warm Springs to introduce him to Mr. Hartford on the telephone.

Still according to Pegler, the elder Roosevelt thanked Mr. Hartford, apparently in advance, for taking care of his son. The settlement of the $200,000 debt for $4000 was made by Jesse Jones on behalf of the Roosevelt family.

Certainly there will be no disposition, even among those of us who found Mr. Roosevelt considerably less than perfect, to gloat over this evidence of Grade C ethical standards in money matters.

The fact that a President of the United States who was a millionaire in his own right should be content with such a settlement on behalf of his son is one of those mysteries which experts on the Roosevelt character must explain as they can.

Franklin D. Roosevelt was a public figure who is understood to have had ambitious aspirations for a place in history. If in some matters his sensibilities left something to be desired, that has to go into the reckoning along with everything else, plus and minus.

The rule of de mortuis nil nisi bonum cannot be invoked to prevent a full appraisal of the New Deal and its leading personalities. We cannot, as the neo-liberals used to remind us, escape history.

THE ABILITY of most of us to arrive at a dispassionate judgment of Mr. Roosevelt's place in history during his life was limited by the fact that for more than twelve years any American who undertook to criticize Mr. Roosevelt's policies or call in question any of his acts risked a barrage of abuse which was at times beyond belief.

Tory, reactionary, Fascist, appeaser, Roosevelt-hater and conspirator were words used indiscriminately to describe any citizen who might have his doubts on OPA or the bookkeeping of Lend-Lease.

Mr. Roosevelt himself delivered pious lectures from which we were expected to conclude that the President's opponents were men of evil purpose and low morals, except when they were the fatuous dupes of wicked malefactors.

He was particularly contemptuous of those who played fast and loose with "other people's money."

Now, after President Roosevelt is dead, we find him tolerant of a transaction which almost any of his horse-and-buggy critics would have shunned, if only to avoid the appearance of evil.

What explains it?

Mr. Roosevelt's undaunted admirers, who are industriously making him into a legend, will laugh it off as the ill-considered act of an inopportune youth.

Don't we all have trouble with our boys? But that won't do.

It doesn't explain the late President's failure to insist that his son should not involve the White House in such a transaction.

Still less the Roosevelt family's failure to do as millions of Americans, more hard pressed than they, have done—pay the debt in full.

IT SEEMS to us that this episode dovetails with many others to illustrate the totalitarian phase of the New Deal, the theory that neither law nor principle matters as much as knowing the "right people" and having the necessary squeeze on vulnerable men.

This was a tendency which alarmed many Americans long before Mr. Roosevelt's death.

Because it is important that Americans should know all about the group which governed them so long and pretended to a monopoly of virtue, it is fortunate that the Elliott Roosevelt-John Hartford transaction was revealed.

THREE YOUNG matrons of Seattle advise this department they are organizing an association for the improvement of the "morals of married men." They want to know if our Mules & Men Department will "co-operate." Our head M & M expert says: "To comply with this request would be an admission the morals of married men need improvement. Generally speaking, we do not think this is the case. However, there may be a few black sheep among the benedicts here and there. If we can assist in improving these fellows who are giving married men in general a bad name we will gladly do so."

ASIDES: The Pantliff Hotel, Grand Rapids, Mich., reserves the entire fourth floor for lengthy guests. On this floor all the beds are seven feet in length. . . . Recently organized at Port Arthur, Tex., was the United Baldheads of America. Joe Landry of Port Arthur was elected exalted high dome. The first convention of the UBA will probably be held at Bald Knob, Tenn., although some members are holding out for it to be held at the foot of Mt. Baldy, Cal.

BEANS: The following government order has Canadian restaurants baffled: "Pork and beans may be legally served in restaurants on meatless days as long as no pork is included." When questioned, those issuing the instructions stated that pork is rarely included in "pork and beans"; that the dish usually consists of beans cooked in fat. That may be true of Canadian baked beans, but not of Boston baked beans. Anyway, the Canadian eatery owners are now listing "porkless pork and beans" on their menu cards.

SAYS HE: A Boston subscriber named Sullivan writes as follows: "Your attention is called to the fact the first American to kill a Jap in this war was Mike Murphy. The first American of the Coast Guard to shoot a German was Pat Cullen. First American pilot to sink a Jap battleship was Colin Kelly. Butch O'Hara was first to shoot down a Jap plane. Mickey Power was first American soldier decorated for gallantry. Dan O'Callaghan was first admiral killed in action and the first American ship to be named after five brothers killed in action was the USS Sullivan."

This is answer to the impatient Baltimore reader who asked you: "Why do they call them the Fighting Irish?"

BRIEFLY: "What singer of the moment has a throb in her voice such as Helen Morgan had? And for which Florence Mills was famous?" asks a New Yorker. I couldn't say. But then I don't listen to the radio regularly. . . . What I want to know is this: When am I going to be able to see Wendy Hiller in another picture? You remember Wendy in "Pygmalion," don't you? A marvelous actress. In my opinion, just as good as Greer Garson.

HEROES: Medals are nice, but heroes should be awarded something more substantial. That is what I have been claiming. Therefore, I was pleased to learn the citizens of New Westminster, B. C., raised a fund to provide annuities for Pvt. Ernest Smith and Maj. Jack Mahony of that city. Both these men, wearers of the Victoria Cross, will receive $100 a month for life after reaching the age of 45.

SIDELIGHTS: President Truman's indications of living up to the "you've got to show me" tradition of Missourians. It was Congressman W. D. A traveling salesman of 30 years experience says the best corned beef hash of all time was made at the old Bancroft Hotel in Saginaw, Mich. This hash was world-famous.

She is possibly possessed of a sympathetic nature and a sense of humor. Also might be a good listener. Men don't just take out "anybody," as she claims. Men usually know what they are doing and are not so dumb as many women claim they are.)

FAR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Copyright, 1945, King Features Synd., Inc.

NEW YORK, July 31—In those wonderful days in St. Louis when you could get a bowl of chile-mac, bread and butter and coffee for 15 cents and save money on $22.50 a week, we had a fight club called the Future City A. C. where, on Wednesday nights, a colored waiter from one of the good hotels ran contests among members of his own race.

Of them I remember Battling Cowmilk, the Alligator Kid, Aig-Head Ratty and one known as the Mexican Kid who drank beer from a growler between rounds and weighed only 135 pounds but licked heavyweights and was longingly remembered in after years by Jimmy Bronson, of Joplin, as the best hitter of his weight that he ever saw.

Mr. Bronson later went to France as a YMCA man because there was no other way for him to make it and there came into the life of Gene Tunney, whom he handled in the historic civic uplift project against Jack Dempsey in Chicago.

His saloon was the last one this side of Mexico. All the intervening land being dry, but he sacrificed money, pride, principle and the convenience of his fellow man down there to abandon a noble public utility and follow the drums.

Mr. Bronson and I sometimes assumed the manner of old-timers, recalling quaint old ways for a new generation of fighters, hostlers and fight writers and described with no more exaggeration that is common to such hars the standard climax of those fight shows, an event called the battle royal.

This came after the regular, two-passenger bouts, with a cast composed, usually, of the winners.

In this playful game there were five contestants, one in each corner and one in the center who usually was the Mexican Kid.

When the bell rang, the Aig-Head, the Alligator, Brother Cowmilk or others, would spring, slide or sneak from their corners and thresh the gamy atmosphere with vigorous blows in a five-sided, one-round fight to a finish.

Obviously the gladiator knew a brother but sometimes collusion reared its ugly head and partners concentrated on the tough ones. However, there could be only one winner so complete trust was impossible.

IT WAS a nutshell presentation of man's disloyalty to man, the nearest approach to which I have seen in 30 years is now being performed in New York, as you will see.

William O'Dwyer, an ex-cop, a self-laughed lawyer and prosecuting attorney for Brooklyn, is the Democratic nominee for mayor. Mr. Roosevelt thought he might become useful if Fiorella LaGuardia should become too preposterous. Last time around, O'Dwyer ran against LaGuardia with Jim Farley in charge of his corner and what Mr. Farley said out loud about the LaGuardia was just awful. That time, the Communists and radicals of the American Labor Party, dealt harshly with O'Dwyer and extolled LaG.

Nevertheless, the ALP has endorsed O'Dwyer this time, to the confusion of a large element of anti-Communists on the Brooklyn side. And the Republicans, for their man, had to abduct Jonah Goldstein, erstwhile Tammany Democrat because there weren't enough Republicans to elect a Republican. They figured that they might draw enough anti-Communist Democrats for their Jewish candidate to defeat Will O'Dwyer.

COMPLICATING the confusion, Edward V. Loughlin, the Tammany leader, gave Tammany's endorsement for the city council to Benjamin Davis, a Negro, who has a plan for an autonomous Negro Soviet stretching from Virginia to Texas which presently would secede from the U. S. A.

Mr. O'D choked on that and made Mr. Loughlin rescind the endorsement. In managing this, Mr. Loughlin said he had discovered that Davis was still a Communist and therefore withdrew his approval, although Davis had never given him any excuse to believe that he had abandoned his faith or his secessionist Negro Soviet plan.

Meanwhile, some Tammany district leaders and captains have now deserted O'Dwyer for running with the Communists of the ALP and come out for Goldstein. And some Republicans have repudiated Goldstein for deserting his own party and have endorsed O'Dwyer.

Mr. Farley holds that no good can come of such promiscuity and has washed his hands with disinterest.

And, finally, the avowed Communists, in a fight of their own, have repudiated Earl Browder for collaborating with Roosevelt during Russia's war by resuming their old campaign for a revolution and strict loyalty to Moscow whose candidate is William O'Dwyer.

WASHINGTON, July 31—The Secretary of State must sign all passports. Guess whose passport was the first to be signed by Jimmy Byrnes when he took over the No. 1 Cabinet job? Jimmy Byrnes!

THE JOB-CHANGING JIMMY was Secretary of State only three days when he took off for Potsdam and way stations. Most of the time previous to his departure was spent in notifying various diplomats, including himself, that Byrnes was now battling for Stettinum.

Following traditional procedure, he sent formal notices to all embassies and legations that he had become Secretary of State. Next, he dispatched a form telegram to all American missions abroad letting them in on the same secret.

He was busy signing letters accrediting new American foreign emissaries when President Truman ordered him to pack up and come along. So he called Mrs. Ruth Shipley, head of the passport division, and told her he would like a passport so he could leave the country. Incidentally, no one, from the President down, can leave these United States without an okay from Mrs. Shipley.

Of course there is not much likelihood of Mrs. Shipley giving the President a cold turn down but he still has to go through the formality of asking.

After Mrs. Shipley approves a passport, it has to go to the Secretary of State for his signature. And when the first batch of passports reached his desk, Jimmy Byrnes found his own on the top.

MICHAEL J. McDERMOTT, sapient head of the State Department's division of current information, once made application for a passport himself. Although he has connections, am wondering how they can pelt this on the screen even though it does make good reading.

WITH ALL thunder popping about the miserable train conditions for service men, I was interested to hear the Carl Dudley Productions is making a colored film called "Hospital Train" for the Ass'n of American Railroads. The picture is being made at Stark General Hospital, Letterman Hospital at San Francisco and Erlingham Hospital in Van Nuys with an all-service man cast.

DARRYL ZANUCK might like to know that Hitler was partial to 20th Century-Fox films. Again, he may not give a hang, but it's interesting to note the head Nazi swiped all 20th films when he invaded Norway. One of our boys who was given the job of inventorying property at Berchtesgaden says he saw prints of 31 of 20th's movies in Hitler's vaults.

CHATTER IN HOLLYWOOD: Concerning those rumors that June Duprez will marry Charles Smith as soon as he is legally free, Mrs. Smith today confirmed she and her husband, who is head of RKO's radio department, have been separated a year. "We are not divorced," Mrs. Smith told me, "but I am seeing a lawyer next week. If I do get a divorce it will be in Los Angeles." That means June and Smith could not be married for still another year, according to California law. You remember she is the English actress brought here by Alex Korda for "The Thief of Bagdad" and more recently was with Cary Grant in "None But the Lonely Heart."

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD COLLECTED AT RANDOM: The Bing Crosby kids were too much for Xavier Cugat. He played baseball with them and suffered a sprained ankle; Martha Raye says she is not expecting a return engagement from the stork and is heading for personal appearances soon; Mrs. Wagner, descendant of the great composer, who ran the opera house in Bayreuth under the Hitler regime, squawked plenty when Joy Hedges' show, "Anything Goes," was staged there for the G.I.s. What Gen. Eisenhower's military government told her could be left to imagination! In case you are waiting for plane reservations choose any Friday the 13th. That's when air travel is lightest: Mrs. John Payne (Gloria De Haven) who has been very sick with flu, is now convalescing here; again, Elaine Osterman, western editor of Photoplay Magazine, in private life Mrs. Walter Donegan, welcomed a baby boy yesterday; the Super Chief brought in L. B. Mayer, Margaret Klumner, Joan Fontaine, Phil Lennen and Eldon Sullivan—the first three home after being in the East, the last two here on business for Lennen and Mitchell.

ARTHUR TREACHER will see his 85-year-old mother for the first time in more than five years when he goes to London with the USO in a few days; Michael Rasmussen's friends are sending him toys as a rib. He is getting over the measles.

Boston After Dark

BOSTON HORSE-OWNERS who plunge heavily on their own horses are shoving their money through the mutuels-machines at Suffolk Downs this season... In the past, most of these large wagers were distributed over a variety of bookmaking establishments in other parts of the country... But one large winning wager of last year was paid off in dribbles by a presumably reliable bookie... Collection is simpler and safer at the track the owner who made the bet concluded.

FIGURING also in the new popularity of the track's mutuels system is the recent precaution taken by many of the large bookmakers of sending "come-back money" to the East Boston oval far in advance of post time... Wartime tie-ups in telephone traffic make this course advisable... Nevertheless an example of a large pool of money reaching the track too quickly happened last week when the 3-year-old Nowadays beat West Fleet, the overnight favorite in that race... The first flash showed $2000 to win and $2000 to place posted against Nowadays... The horse at once became a 1-5 favorite in the race.

ALTHOUGH handles of the so-called "public's money" later showed for West Fleet, the rival Nowadays remained the favorite and, incidentally, won like one... That initial $2000 twin and place wager undoubtedly influenced many bettors in their selection... As it turned out, they were influenced in the right direction... In ordinary times, that large water would not have showed in the machines until a few minutes before post time... When owners or trainers bet with bookmakers under ordinary conditions a fact understanding exists that the bookie will "protect" his customer.

SHOULD the bookie decide to "lay off" the wager, or part of it, the understanding has been that the money would not be returned to the racetrack where the horse was running until the post... It is not so easy these days, however, to get the come-back money commissioner of a racetrack within a few seconds of placing a long distance phone call.

GOVERNOR TOBIN chose a Seaside movie theater as the place to view "The Great John L." Ring Crosby's first independent movie... His Excellency—as a qualified boxing fan—got a real boot out of the film... In his adolescence, Governor Tobin had several favorite New England boxers... His pet was Eddie Shelvin... The Governor thinks that the boxing business is in for a real revival when the boys are mustered out... He believes that youngsters with a love for boxing have had a chance in the war to develop their talent for throwing punches, and that natural rivalries will outlast the war period and continue in the boxing we hope—days of blessed peace.

EXCLUSIVE: The Al Jolson starring show will be the first of three Michael Todd productions to show in Boston this Fall... His role will be that of a band leader named "Christie" a fellow who had enough action and gall to share the credits and royalties with the great Stephen Foster... "Oh, Susanna" is said to be Mike's section of a title for the Jolson musical... An opera by it title, and dealing with the same subject, Stephen Foster's love and music was produced a dozen years ago on the West Coast... It seems unlikely that Mr. Todd is going in for revivals, and more probable that he has acquired the rights to the title and such of the material of that earlier show as pleases him... The second Todd musical will star Bert Lahr, and the final script and score are expected to be delivered next week.

Broadway

NEW YORK, July 31—A Hollywood producer who dramatizes the life of a celebrity while his friends and relatives are still alive is a venture some fellows, for no one's complete biography can be compressed into the playing time of even the longest movie, and no one's personal history can be translated for public consumption without editing and censoring.

Helen Morgan

I HAVE NOT yet seen "Incendiary Blonde," which purports to be the life of Texas Guinan, but I ran into Eddie Davis of Leon & Eddie's after the preview, and he seemed quite dazed by the variance between the heroine of the picture and the woman he knew well in life.

It was a good picture, he said; a swell picture. But it wasn't well, did you ever know Texas?

EDDIE SAID the tears wept for Texas were as real as any he had ever seen on Broadway. And he told me of how a hundred or so of her friends had gone out to the cemetery to say goodbye to her on the black starless night after the funeral. They were all show-people and night club people and columnists—the stars of her particularly gaudy era. There was no moon and no light anywhere and Helen Morgan started lighting matches at the doorway of the mausoleum. Soon they were all lighting matches and the night was made strange by a hundred tiny titful flames.

Then Helen said: "It's dark now. This is just when Texas would be starting to live."

And she led them all in a prayer for Texas. Eddie said Helen was the youngest person there that night. No one ever dreamed she would be the next to die.

Cooper Turns Cowhand At Keith's Tomorrow

Gary Cooper, as a two-fisted... but gun-shy... cowhand who impersonates a cattle country desperado to win the girl he loves, and Loretta Young, as his frontier sweetheart, are co-starred in "Along Came Jones."

The International Pictures' fun-filled adventure romance, which is being released by RKO Radio, is to be given its local premiere on Keith Memorial screen on Wednesday.

Cooper also produced the film, which was directed by Stuart Heisler from a screen play by Nunnally Johnson.

The film presents Cooper as Melody Jones, a "bronc stomper," who while riding through a little frontier town with his pessimistic pal (William Demarest) is mistaken for a notorious bandit, Monte Jarrad, and is pleased with all the attention until he learns the reason for it.

It's lucky for Jones that Loretta Young, as pretty Cherry DeLongre, rescues him from the vengeful citizenry, when he is exposed as a harmless poseur. The real bandit (Dan Duryea) is hiding out on the DeLongre ranch, protected by Cherry, his childhood schoolmate, who is sorry for him.

For a breath-stopping climax, Jones and Monte shoot it out at close range, with a posse closing in on them.

"Along Came Jones" is being played in 16-mm form before American servicemen at all action fronts by courtesy of the motion picture industry, supplementing the Army's formal exhibition at expeditionary bases.

Park Top Lead May Be Broken

Boston's Park League continued into the final week of play bound up tighter than a drum with all seven teams battling for a playoff position.

The Navy Yard-Casey Club first place tie remains even after last night's contests wherein each copped a win. They now hold 47 points apiece with but three games remaining. The Navy Yarders have an off night tonight, but the Dick Casey Club will send Leo Galligan against the up and coming Rosindale Club tonight at Fallon Field in Rosindale.

The Rosindale outfit, after overhauling the Hicks Engineers over the week-end, passed them last night by a 6 to 3 win over the McCarthy Club. They will use Don Stevens, their ace against the Casey's tonight.

The McCarthy Club and the Crosby Club, fourth and fifth place teams, will battle it out at the Fens Stadium, while the Hicks Engineers will attempt to get back into the running when they meet the Linehan Club at the South Boston Stadium.

Sugar Robinson Faces Suspension

CHICAGO, July 31 (INS)—Ray "Sugar" Robinson, New York Negro welterweight, faced threatened suspension today by the Illinois Athletic Commission if he fails to meet Jack Lamotta of New York Aug. 23, in a 12-round bout at Comiskey Park.
George Gainford, Robinson's manager of record who signed for the match when offered a $25,000 guarantee, later wrote the commission asking to be relieved of responsibility for the match since he was under suspension at the time. The commission refused the request on the ground that neither Gainford nor Robinson was under suspension in Illinois.
